

The man with the biggest penis in the world

The man with the Biggest penis in the world
Lived a surprisingly unhappy life considering
You see, it was so big, when he got a hard-on
When all the blood rushed to it
It had to go from somewhere, didn't it?
It went from all his other organs
This obviously included his brain
He got an erection, he passed out
It was as simple as that
So, what's the use of having the biggest penis in the world
If you can't stay conscious long enough to do anything fun with it?
So he obviously had to try to keep away from any stimulus

Which is easier said than done

So occasionally it would be unavoidable
And when his mind wasn't working
His penis would take over
We all know what a man really thinks with don't we?
This other part of his anatomy did some thinking for itself
And it got good at it too
It got to like being in control
It didn't want to go back to being nothing again
Well, would you?

So it hatched itself a little plan

It concentrated all its efforts on one thing

Taking over, It grew stronger

It learned how to stay there, To stay up

All it had to do was think about something really boring

And it could stay in a position of command as long as it wanted

It did it by night, when the man was asleep

When he wouldn't know

Eventually it could put the man out and take control whenever it wanted to

And he never guessed, until it was too late, that is
It gradually took over, it had grown itself little stumpy arms
Formed a semblance of a face and somehow even managed to breathe
It had developed a set of fully working inner organs
The upper body of the man shrivelled into a small empty tail-like appendage
Like a normal sized penis, only at the back of the spine
In order to keep itself in control it embarked on a life of boredom
The biggest penis in the world lives independently of the man
It moved to Bournemouth, where it now sells double glazing.

Paul Rafferty.